STATE BAR OF MONTANA FUNDS EXCITING NEW APPROACH TO INFORMATION DELIVERY

Simultaneous Remote Database Searching (SRDS) is a new concept in information technology. Via telephone lines, SRDS allows information to be transmitted from a database (LEXIS, WESTLAW, DIALOG) to a searching computer terminal (Law Library) and to be simultaneously transmitted to a second, satellite terminal at a remote location (Red Lodge, for example). This technique is now possible in Montana thanks to a gift of equipment from the State Bar of Montana to the State Law Library.

With SRDS, the law library will perform the computer search, while the second, satellite terminal also receives. Via a second, separate, telephone connection, human interaction will occur when the searcher directs questions to the person at the remote terminal. In turn, the person at the satellite terminal will answer and/or ask questions.

With this system, the frustrations commonly experienced by the novice or infrequent searcher are circumvented, because an expert searcher is involved. Search results are better defined and more relevant, because the patron immediately sees the results in the form of a joint dialogue between the searcher and the computer database system.

Our objective in providing this innovative program is to reach out to the practitioners and smaller law firms in remote areas which have been unable or unwilling to do their own on-line searching. We are excited to be offering this service, which is the first of its kind in the United States to target a legal community.

LEXIS AT THE BAR

Look for the Law Library's exhibit table at the State Bar's annual meeting in July. We will be there, next to LEXIS, and will be anxious to discuss with you the membership group plan for Simultaneous Remote Searching utilizing LEXIS and our Montana FAXNET project.

WHAT'S OURS IS YOURS

You, too, can have a list, i.e. a catalog, of the books, law reviews, video tapes, etc. that are in the law library's collection. In order to increase the usefulness and convenience of the library's collection, we offer for sale, copies of the library's microfiche catalog.

Materials in the catalog may be located by author, title, or subject. Access to a microfiche reader is necessary for using the catalog.

We hope that having the library's catalog in offices will aid in utilizing the State Law Library's collection throughout Montana.

Enter my order for _____ copy(ies) of the current issue of the State Law Library's microfiche catalog @ $25.00 per copy or _____ annual subscription (4 quarterly issues) @ $75.00. Payment is enclosed.

HOW WE FARED DURING THE 50TH LEGISLATIVE SESSION

Like other state agencies, we were given no additional funding during the 1987 session. Our appropriation for FY 88/89 sustains the cuts we have taken in the past eighteen months. Our book budget will enable us to purchase at only 1983 levels, which means that we will continue to cancel subscriptions and will be unable to add many new titles.

The Law Library did not lose any staff positions which definitely is good news. We had requested an additional part-time circulation clerk to help with the CLE tape program, but this request was not funded.

Because our services continue to be used at record levels, we no longer will be open on Sundays. Those four hours of staffing will be more effectively used during peak hours Monday through Friday.

Representative John Cobb introduced HB 911 at the end of the session, which would have consolidated the Law Library with the State Library. This consolidation would have eliminated half of our staff, seriously reduced the book budget, and forced cancellation of many of our programs and services. With the willing and able assistance of so many of our friends in the library and legal communities, we were successful in having the bill killed and our funding restored in the general appropriations bill.

The lesson we learned is: it's not over until it's over. Thanks for all your help. It certainly was gratifying to know that so many of you feel our services and resources are important to you.
